MERRIMACKAN

PRESENTED BY THE
SENIOR CLASS OF
MERRIMACK COLLEGE
NORTH ANDOVER
MASSACHUSETTS

This—a song of love
Of that illusive goddess knowledge
Jealous of her seclusion Hidden behind the solid doors.
You womanhood divine, mistress and source of all.
You unseen moral essence of all the vast material of America.
You that, sometimes known, oftener unknown, really shape and mold the New World adjusting it to time and space.
Your past and present purpose, tenaciously pursued, may-be unconscious of yourself, unswerved by all the passing errors, disturbances
of the surface.
You vital, universal deathless germ beneath
all creeds, arts,
statutes, literatures.
Here on the golden shore build your home
for good,
We pledge; we dedicate
to you.

This then our song—
the striving, searching, digging, building from the ground:
Deep smk fonndations, firmly placed,
steeled concrete, raised against the sky,
Grand old campns dame, our nation's futnre face — Gnild Hall — 1947:
Co-ed hostel, powder, books and ronge — Cascia Hall — 1947:
Sweat, dancing, muscles trial — Gymnasium — 1948;
Angles, T-squares, tripods, acids, vials and flame, Deus scientiarum
Dominus est — Cnshing Hall — 1949;
Emitting Aves, laws, direction, Olympus and soul — Austin Hall — 1952:
Man, his make-up, history and worlds, his life, relations, sentient, ideal world — Sullivan Hall — 1952;
Queen mother, rnling over all, peaceful, sure — Chapel of Christ the Teacher — 1956;
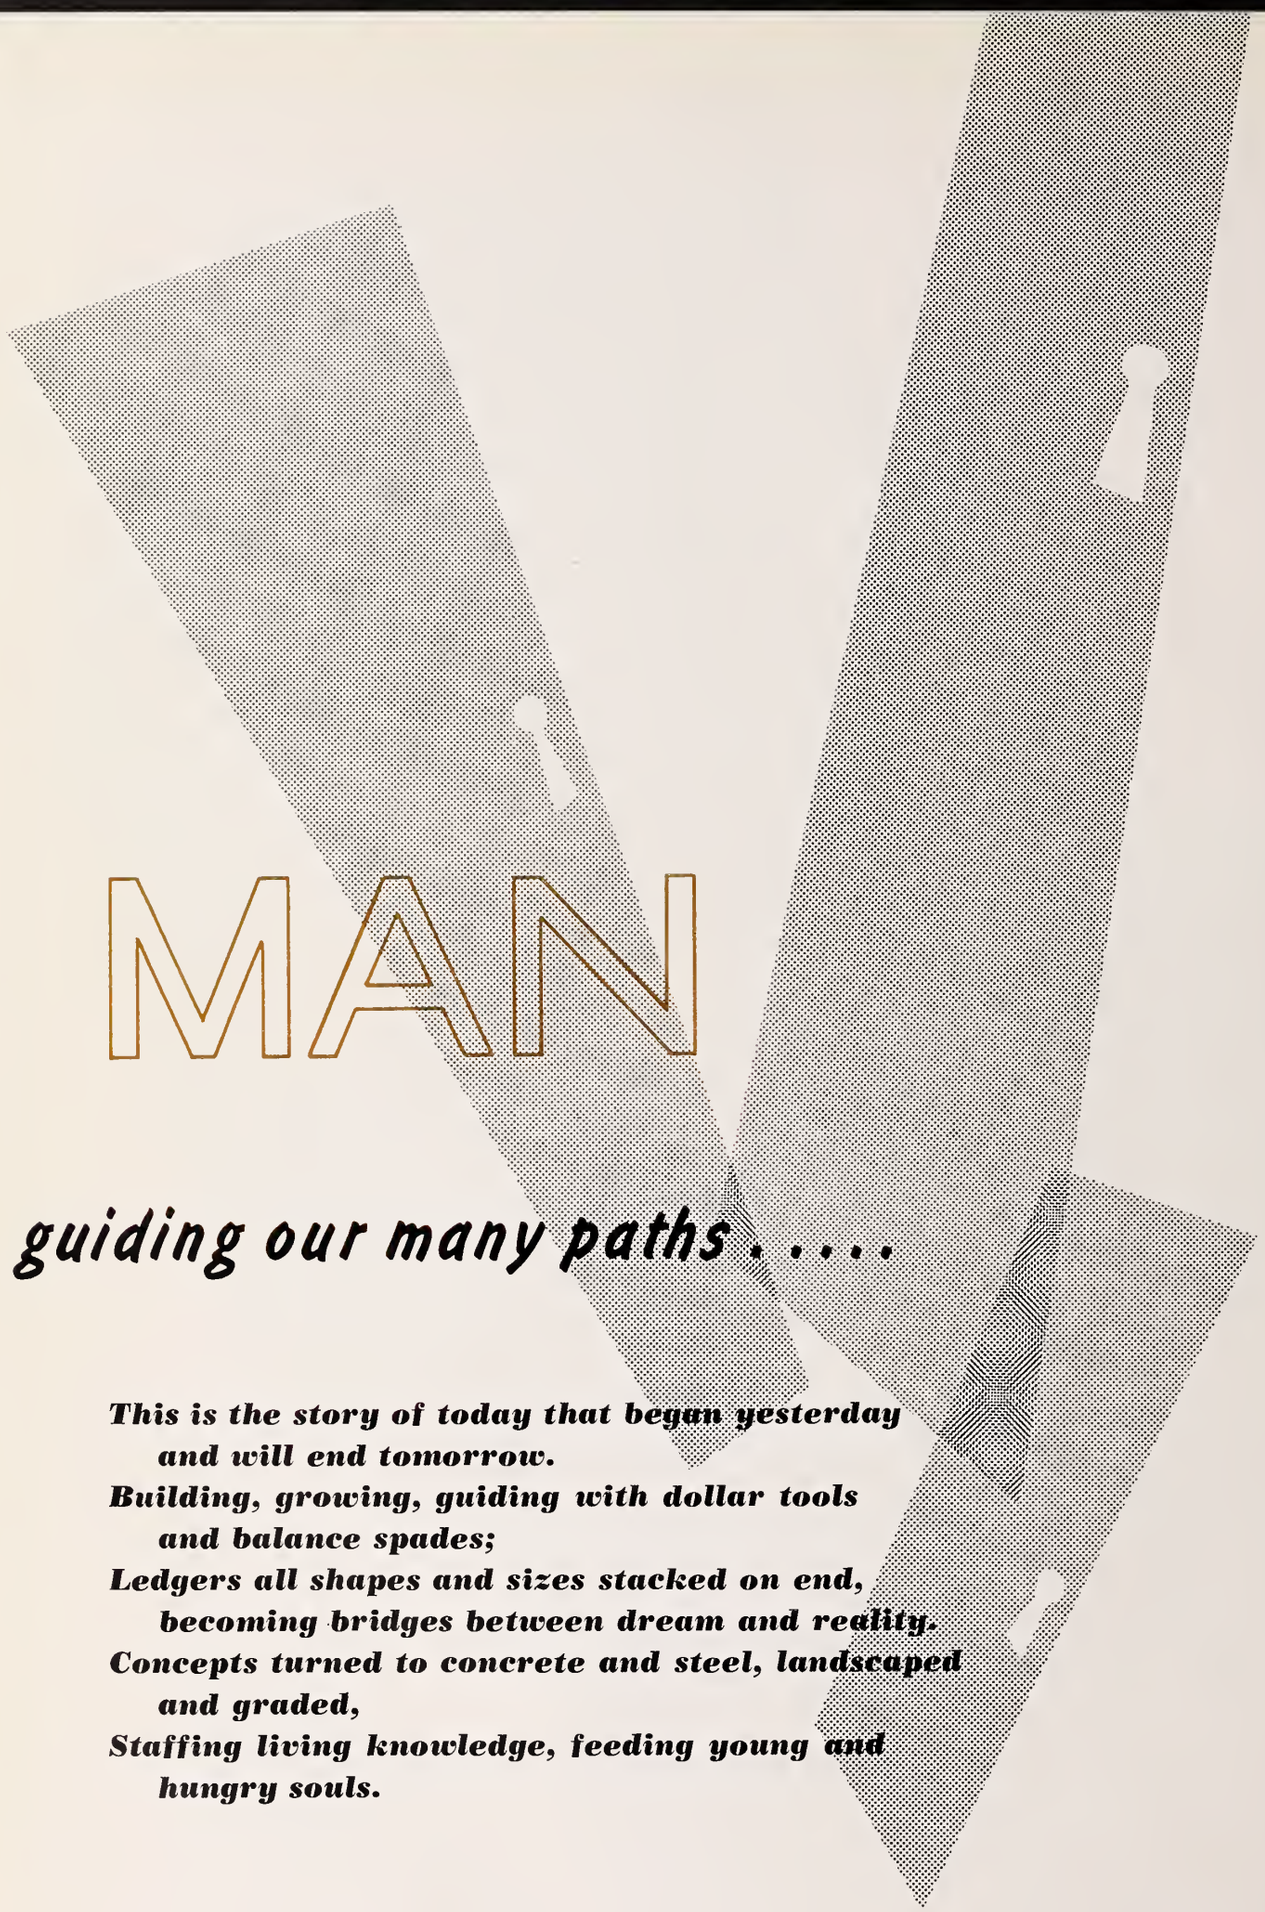
Graphs, budgets, ledgers, aeconomia, Wall Street world — O'Reilly Hall — 1958:
Bandaides, splints, iodine and tears — Fox Hill House — 1958;
Refection, social, mind and heart — Tagastan Hall — 1959;
Sleep, study, home-from-home — Austin Centre — Monican Centre — 1960;
Humming with the search for truth,
Wedded to the earth.

The growing years.....

The statue of Christ the Teacher symbolizes the world of education, and stands guard over the campus of Merrimack College. It epitomizes the social, intellectual and religious aspects of our life as students, and projecting into the future, will remain as a symbol to us in our lives beyond the scope of the campus.

September, 1960, witnessed the completion of two dormitories—the latest addition to the Merrimack College campus. Austin Centre houses the men, and the co-eds reside in Monican Centre. Architecturally, the structures are of Georgian Colonial design, and, upon the erection of additional units, the buildings will exhibit a "Y-shape" form. In the rotunda of each dormitory is an impressive circular fireplace, and superimposed on the protective shield above the hearth is the seal of the College.

As our campus enlarges, the buildings take on a special aura and personality of their own, and each is recognized as housing one of the disciplines. Sullivan Hall is the home of the School of Liberal Arts and Sciences, and subjects ranging from Biology to Fine Arts are taught within its environs.



MAN

guiding our many paths . . . .

This is the story of today that began yesterday and will end tomorrow.
Building, growing, guiding with dollar tools and balance spades;
Ledgers all shapes and sizes stacked on end,
becoming bridges between dream and reality.
Concepts turned to concrete and steel, landscaped and graded,
Staffing living knowledge, feeding young and hungry souls.

REVEREND VINCENT A. McQUADE, O.S.A.

PRESIDENT

Merrimack, in fourteen short years, has grown from an infant institution of two buildings into a thriving college campus housing well over a thousand students in modern buildings. The responsibility of guiding and directing such an effort has fallen mainly on the shoulders of one man, Reverend Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A. From the very beginnings of the college itself, Father McQuade has been a mainstay and has given unceasingly of his time and effort. Allying himself with the progressive spirit of the '60's, Father McQuade, projecting his plans into the future, plans to complete the Dormitories and start construction on a new Library.

REVEREND JOSEPH P. MURRAY, O.S.A.

VICE-PRESIDENT

Reverend Joseph P. Murray, O.S.A., Vice-President and Dean of the College, is known and deeply respected by the students and faculty. Father Murray has served Merrimack College well in many different capacities in the years he has spent with us. As former Chairman of the Department of Business Administration, he displayed a great concern for the general well-being of the students who were under his care. This same spirit of genuine interest pervades all of his endeavors, and is sincerely appreciated by those who have had any dealings with him.

PRIOR

The Very Reverend Arthur B. Maxwell, O.S.A., Litt.D., is Prior of the Monastery of Our Lady of Good Counsel at Merrimack College. In this capacity, Father Maxwell acts as the shepherd of the Augustinian Fathers teaching at Merrimack.

CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD

The Very Reverend James C. Donnellon, O.S.A., A.B., M.S., Ph.D., Prior Provincial of the Province of Saint Thomas of Villanova and Chairman of the Board of Trustees of Merrimack College.

Father Donnellon is a serious and earnest worker with a congenial personality, and his action and paternal encouragement have made possible the rapid advancement and development of the college.

The Board of Trustees of Merrimack meets many times during the academic year to discuss the business and governing of the college. Members are, left to right: Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., Rev. Paul M. Judson. O.S.A., Rev. Edward J. Carney, O.S.A., Rev. John J. Daley, O.S.A., Rev. Henry B. Smith, O.S.A., and Rev. Thomas F. Walsh, O.S.A.

FACULTY

List close my scholars dear,
Doctrines, politics and civilization exurge from you,
Sculpture and monuments and any thing inscribed anywhere are tallied in you.

The gist of histories and statistics as far back as the records reach is in you this hour, and myths and tales the same,
If you were not breathing and walking here, where would they all be?
The most renown'd poems would be ashes, orations and plays would be vacuums.
All architecture is what you do to it when you look upon it, (Did you think it was in the white or gray stone? or the lines of the arches and cornices?)
All music is what awakes from you when you are reminded by the instruments.

It is not the violins and the cornets, it is not the oboe nor the beating drums, nor the score of the baritone singer singing his sweet romanza, nor that of the men's chorus, nor that of the women's chorus,
It is nearer and farther than they.

UNDERCLASSMEN

Within.....

This then we leave to you
the keys to nature's mine, pure science with her diadem.
Great vistas opening wide, revealing essence,
form and law.
God's glory to be known, Truth, Beauty and Unitas,
underlying, shaping all.
Go then, explore this treasure, golden city, eternal on the hill, unhidden from your sight.

Madame is queen and mistress in her demesne of sophomorehood. So kiss my hand oh freshman vassal in solemn allegiance—for my reign is short in this swift epoch of orientation.

Attention, ladies! No time for retrospection now. Come on, smile—four years isn't very long. Hey, there, don't look so bored, or is it that you're afraid? Look ahead; in a while you'll be ready to graduate; then you'll really be scared.

. . . . FRESHMEN

Let's pretend we don't see that sophomore and his camera. This is our night to live now that all the struggles of that long initiation are over. That wonderful music should get our undivided attention.

Philosophy begins in wonder! Wonder surrounds me in this maze of mass confusion that is a Freshman's due. Oh God, grant me the sanity to accept the things I cannot change, to endure but a little longer, and, please God, in some distant millenium to become the pinnacle of knowledge—a Sophomore.

Studied concentration in a pool of confusion asks—Gad pinhead, what next lies ahead? Submit, surrender, then slide into the students'yoke.

Come on now, dear. Think! You must have a name!

The canteen is the popular room for all students. These are obviously hungry ones looking for their lunch. They will soon be engaged in philosophical conversations concerning all phases of social life on campus.

That's all right, dearie! Next year when you are a wise sophomore you will understand all this. We know your predicament. The exalted upperclassman is trying to clear up the confusion of first days.

The Barn Dance, sponsored jointly by the Phi Colonials and the Varsity Club, was held in the Gymnasium. The informal dress required at this type of dance added to the relaxing time had by all. Here our Yearbook photographer surprises a few Merrimack students and their dates.

ACTIVITIES

Within.....

Study me here before you, I am man.
My words, my ways, my motives.
Seek out my wealth and build for me
Balance, move in play.
See with eyes of beauty, hear with rhythmic ears,
Discuss, describe, dissect me.
A subject universal
Know me in my essense, in my sphere
Love me, I am man.

MERRIMACKAN

The graduating class of 1961 proudly presents this edition of the Merrimackan. It has been presented with much "blood, sweat and tears." The memories of four wonderful and, at times, maddening years, have been compressed into these pages. We sincerely hope and trust that our readers will be able to enjoy our work, almost as much as we, the actors, enjoyed living it. In years to come, we'll page through this great book of ours and remember all the various occasions presented. We'll be very nostalgic then and maybe a little sad. It will be our turn to say, "These were the happiest of years!" Then we'll laugh because we might remember the complaining. But by that time, all the hard work and perhaps the jittery nerves will have been forgotten. We'll all agree—it was time well spent.

Co-editors Rosemary Twomey and John Murray peruse the dummy copy of the '61 Merrimackan. The co-editors perform the myriad tasks of conceiving and nursing through its incipience the new yearbook. It is largely due to their zeal and the enthusiasm of the entire staff that the publication was possible.

Father Ezra J. Fenton, O.S.A., our competent and untiring moderator, relaxes for a moment. Bringing order from chaos is a normal duty for Fr. Fenton in his function as moderator of the Merrimackan. Without his capable direction and foresight, this publication would not have become a reality.

Business Manager Dick Wolfington and his assistant, Anne Scannell, check the list of contributors to the Merrimackan. The business section is responsible for soliciting advertising from various patrons, professional friends and business concerns in the area. These are the life source of any yearbook.

The Sectional Editors, who were responsible for gathering and sorting the numerous pictures and ideas, combine their efforts to meet a deadline. Late hours were kept and much coffee consumed as their efforts produced a well organized arrangement of the trials and tribulations we confronted while achieving our goal.

Though the compilation of a bi-weekly student publication involves many serious moments, the staff also finds time to relax. Staff meetings are an integral part of this organization, where intense collaboration is necessary. Past issues are analyzed with a view to producing improved future issues.

The editors of the Warrior for 1961, Don Porter and Peg McGinnis discuss pertinent issues relating to the organization of the student publication. Quality and factual news reporting are among the many endeavors undertaken by the Warrior staff. The editors are the overseers of structural planning and policy decisions relative to all organizational material.

News articles must be carefully scrutinized before being released for publication. This involves factual reporting and strict supervision by the editorial staff, individual reporters and feature writers. Articles submitted for publication must be reveiwed by the proofreading and copywriting departments with an eye towards correct news style and journalistic form.

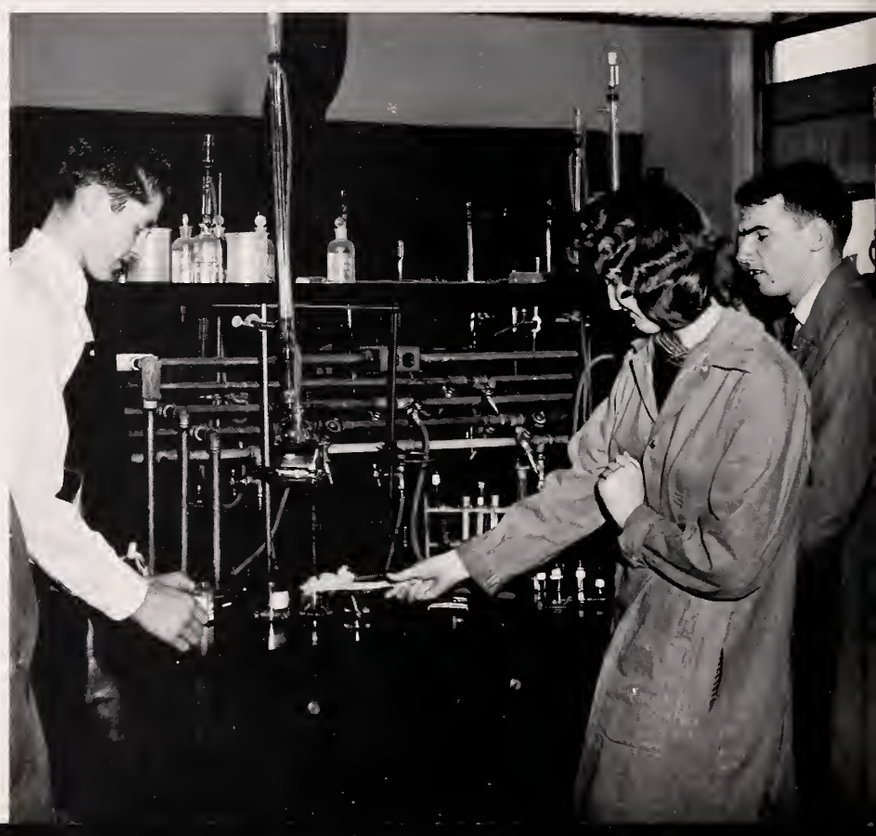
Past editors of the Warrior confer with the 1961 staff. Their experienced advice proved a valuable asset to the incoming staff. Time has shown that in developing an effective newspaper experience is of the utmost importance. The achievement of success is dependent upon a smooth functioning organization.

The success of the Caducean Club is due to the spirit of its members. Night meetings are an important part of the club agenda, and speakers, often prominent figures in the field of biology, are featured. Field trips help instill a better understanding and excite new ideas. The versatile and creative members publish the quarterly newspaper, Caduceus.

CADUCEAN CLUB

BENZENE RING

The Benzene Ring Society includes students interested in expanding their knowledge of chemistry. The club has two publications, the monthly Benzene News, and the semester Report, aimed at keeping chemistry students aware of the latest technical developments. At the night meetings the club members have found new knowledge, inspiration, and ideas for the future as chemists in talks given by outstanding men in industry and by faculty members. Because of affiliation with the American Chemical Society, the chemistry majors are included in that organization's functions. Members enjoy the stimulating lectures held at Harvard University each month, sponsored by the Intercollegiate Chemical Society.



AEGIDIANS

This club is composed of those students who are interested in entering the teaching profession. Prominent speakers in the field of education, as well as recent graduates of the education department, are presented to the club to keep the students informed of the latest requirements and methods.

ECONOMICS CLUB

The Economics Club was formed this year with the intention of promoting discussions of domestic and world events as viewed by the economist. To augment their knowledge, these economics majors engaged in various field trips and ventures into the stock market. In addition they sponsor several enjoyable social events.

THE ON-STAGERS

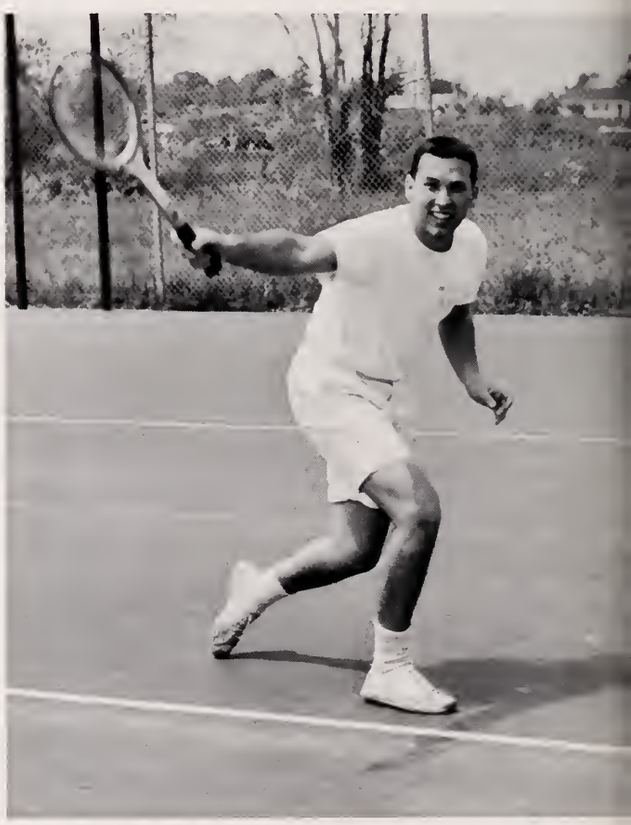
"What'll you have?" Jim Ward asks Judy Pinnell and Jack Winters in recent On-Stager's production of Thornton Wilder's "Our Town." Cast and stage crew, under the able direction of new faculty drama moderator, Mr. Burke, spent long hours in rehearsal and preparation for the three evening performances given in December.

Jean Carey portrayed the title role in George Bernard Shaw's "St. Joan," the Spring, 1960, production of the On-Stagers. Joe Nahil, John Corriero, and Ben Consoli are pictured in a main scene from the play, which is only one of the consistently fine performances offered by the Merrimack drama society. The organization offers opportunity for use of a wide range of talents besides thespian ability, including make-up, production, props and settings, lighting, costumes, and prompting. In the production of "St. Joan," well-planned backgrounds were used, but the play was unique in that it was presented in modern dress. Knights wore army uniforms, the priests donned modern clerical garb, and the nobles were dressed in tuxedos.

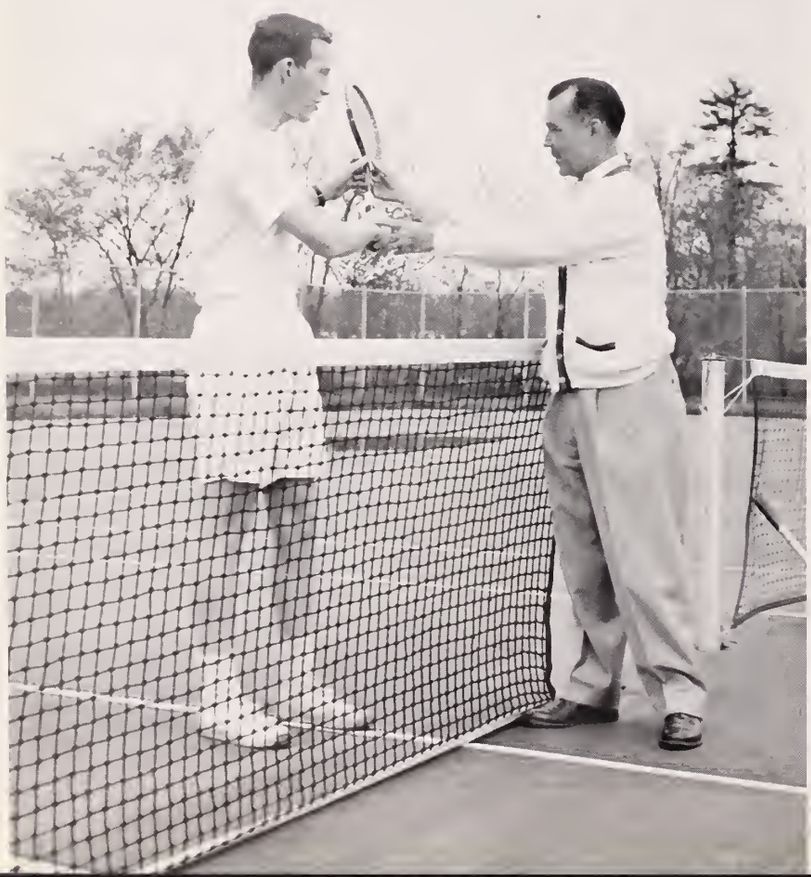
"They don't understand, do they?" Judy Pinnell asks. Portraying Emily Webb in "Our Town" she has returned to her grave, after reliving a day in her life. The living do not understand what death really is. The dead are sitting on chairs which represent graves, since Thornton Wilder wanted to write a play concerned only with plot.

The Literary Club is discussing Shakespeare. The girls wonder if his hair really was that curly but the boys appear skeptical about the whole thing. Cheer up, men, the fashion may return!

LITERARY CLUB



A nicely placed shot, we'd say, judging by the smile on Jose's face. Our Cuban court king displays his formidable back hand to his opponent. Tennis, as an intra-mural sport, has increased tremendously in popularity at Merrimack since its inception several years ago.



TENNIS CLUB

Bill Lever gets a few pointers on how to improve his game. The Tennis Club gives its members an opportunity to display their talents and increase their capabilities with the tennis racquet. Some of our varsity players have been products of the club.

PHI-COLONIALS

In February of 1960 the Phi Colonial Fraternity, an aspirant of National Phi Kappa Theta, was conceived at Merrimack. Executives met with the group to establish the requirements of affiliation with the National Fraternity. Since then they have progressed from a group interested in fraternity life to a sound organized and officially recognized campus club.

The aims of the Phi-Colonials, an aspiring National Catholic Fraternity, are to bring college students into brotherly relationships and to encourage the attainment of high scholastic standing. Moreover each member is under strict obligation to uphold by the manner of his life the honor and dignity of Merrimack College and of his Catholic Faith.

"Really, dear, there's nothing to be nervous about. I've made many public appearances and it's wonderful to see all those faces staring at you, waiting for you to make one tiny mistake." Mary Coughlin, however, isn't the least bit consolable.

During the "five-minute break" at Choral Society rehearsals, some members relax by singing their favorite songs.

The Choral Society at Merrimack College is under the direction of Father Thomas Walsh. This well rehearsed group offers two concerts a year which, open to the public, are always well received. During the Christmas season they grace the patients of local hospitals with the warmth of their voices.

CHORAL SOCIETY

Peg Finnigan, George Morgan, and Andy Turcott amuse themselves during a break in a Choral Society rehearsal. It must be an hilarious song, judging from the reactions, especially Peg's. All of the members of the Choral Society enjoy their work tremendously, and this enjoyment is evidenced in their concerts.

Among the many programs presented by the Choral Society during the year are the two major productions, the Spring and Fall Concerts. During the year long hours are spent at rehearsals, and the end product of the time and work spent is the polished performance given in these concerts. This group travels not only in the New England area, but has been invited to sing in other areas on the Eastern Seaboard.

WINTER

SPRING

The Carillon members look to Mrs. Ground as a guide and inspiration. Although time is one's most invaluable possession, she is always kind enough to offer her services.

As president of the literary magazine The Carillon, Mac spends much time in deep thought. His conscientious efforts have made the magazine one of the highlights of our campus.

CARILLON

A few of the members of the group take time out to discuss a point. Joe Consentino offers a few suggestions; anyone is free to disagree if he so chooses. The students are proud of their magazine because it gives everyone on campus a chance to express his literary talent, and also to receive recognition for his work.

The Sociology Club is comprised of students majoring in sociology, history, and humanities, who aim to broaden the many ideas instilled in their classroom studies. This is accomplished through the presentation of lectures on such diverse topics as urban redevelopment and penal institutions. Frequent trips to social agencies show textbook theory put into practice.

SOCIOLOGY CLUB

Sociological material is gathered and shared by the members so that the club gains important insight into the problems of local and metropolitan areas.

BUSINESS CLUB

The purpose of the Business Club is a co-curricular activity. Along with his textbook theorizing and solving of hypothetical cases and problems, the business student is provided with a practical link to the world of the executive. This function is served by the many speakers the club brings on campus from the ranks of top management or sales. These men, by their counsel, help the student and neophyte businessman to gain an insight into his chosen career. Also, club-sponsored field trips to factories and offices aid the student in gaining some practical knowledge of official procedures and manufacturing processes.

SECRETARIAL SCIENCE CLUB

The members of the club are Secretarial Science majors. In addition to their regular monthly meetings, the club holds an annual fashion show, the proceeds of which go to the Campus Building Fund. Prominent speakers at their frequent dinner meetings provide members with an intimate insight into the business field and current events.

POLITICAL SCIENCE CLUB

The Political Science Club aims to arouse a lasting interest in both governmental and political affairs. An election of the presidential, senatorial, and gubernatorial nominees drew the largest group participation that Merrimack has ever seen.

SKI-MERS

Father Walsh leads a pack of "snow-bunnies" on their first down-hill excursion at Mount Cranmore.

Ray Tetrault cuts a narrow gate in the giant slalom race.

The Merrimack ski team: Ray Tetrault, Dick Letarte, Bob Pothier, Jack Hogan, Harvey Rowe, and Dick Kennedy.

On the way to the summit.

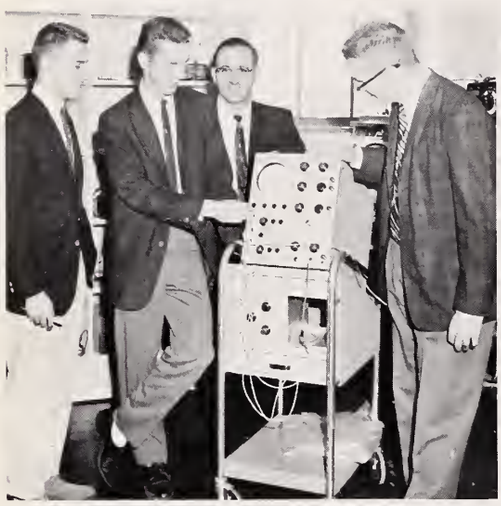
ACCOUNTING CLUB

The Accounting Society is designed to establish and maintain a close unity among Merrimack College students, alumni engaged in the Accounting field, the faculty, and practicing accountants in the area. Members are informed of current problems in the field and employment prospects by the society's plan of adding to the reference files in the college library. The society brings in distinguished speakers throughout the year, plans field trips and holds an annual banquet.

PENMEN CLUB

The Penmen is composed of students seriously interested in creative writing. It is closely connected with the Carillon, the student literary publication. Members submit their manuscripts at meetings to be read and criticized on content, style and idea. The club endeavors to give the students of Merrimack the opportunity to express themselves and to receive constructive criticism from their peers. The club moderator, Mrs. Ground, takes a faithful interest in the weekly meetings.

Shown examining some of their apparatus are a small group of student members of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.



These active members of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers hopes soon to become a student branch of the Institute of Radio Engineers.

Back stage at "Our Town" are shown three members of the Electrical Engineering Guild doing their part in lighting the stage.

ENGINEERING GUILD

Student Civil Engineers are members of the Engineering Guild. This organization endeavors to provide opportunities for field trips, lectures, and films that are beneficial to the student. The Civil Engineers this year are aspiring to become affiliated with the American Society of Civil Engineers. This society encourages contact between student engineers and practicing members of their profession.

Since sound intellectual and moral leadership is expected from Merrimack graduates, the Debating Society aims at a high degree of experience. Through a rigorous program of intercollegiate debates, an opportunity is afforded participants to include and develop those scholarly and persuasive characteristics necessary in the leaders of today. A debator has the opportunity to prepare a case on a national issue using his own abilities to argue and persuade with proper taste and principles.

DEBATING CLUB

YACHTING CLUB

The winning of the Associate Member Championship of the New England Intercollegiate Sailing Association highlighted a successful year for Merrimack's Yachting Club.

Commodore John Collins, aided by a most able newcomer Dick Patten—in addition to "olde salts" Tim Samway, Ted Kelley, George Cooper, Rose Foley and Helen Colbert—proved quite competent on the water against such able opponents as Brown, Northeastern, Tufts, Boston College, Boston University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Colby and Providence.

Bill Poole, Sigma Beta Kappa president, asks for suggestions. The brothers carefully plan for the approaching "Open House" at Merrimack. As hosts, the fraternity fulfills one of its numerous functions as a Catholic fraternal organization.

SIGMA BETA KAPPA

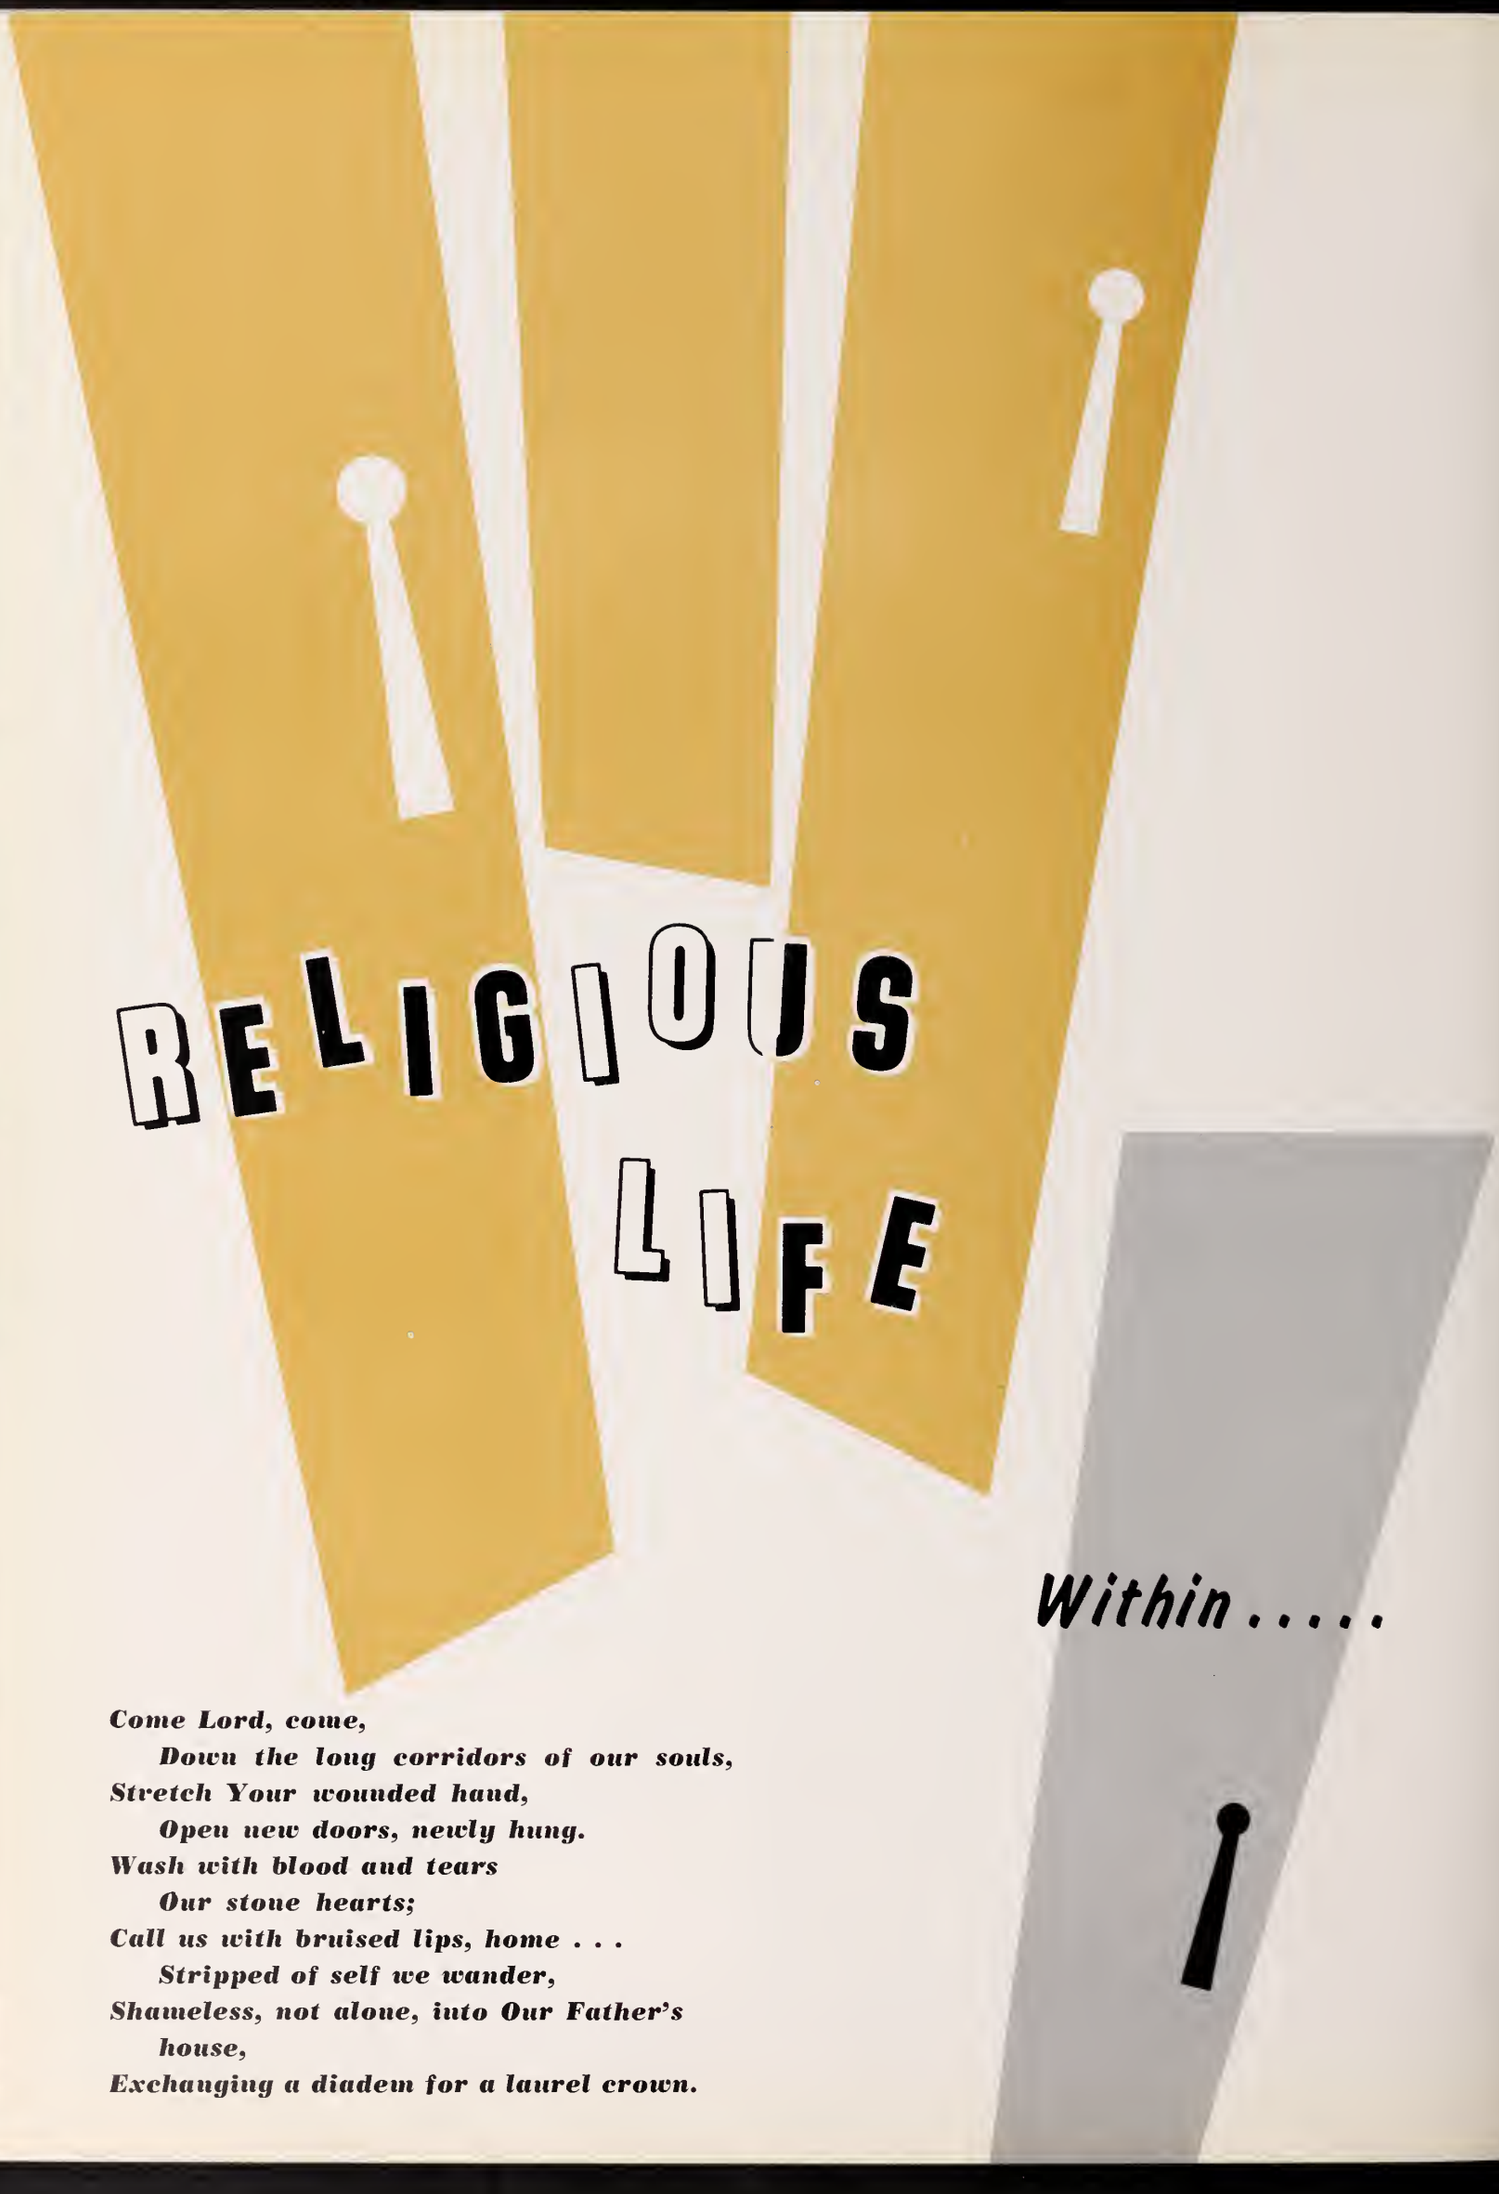
Merrimack College is very proud of one of its oldest and finest organizations on campus. For five years, the Sigma Beta Kappa fraternity has assisted at college functions as Merrimack's official welcoming committee. John Wojtkun is a typical and popular member of SBK. This picture was taken in a rare moment!

CONTEMPORARY SOUNDS SOCIETY

The Contemporary Sounds Society is organized to further the understanding of contemporary American music, specifically jazz. The group plays recordings and exchanges comments. They also present live jazz concerts on campus to foster an interest in modern music among Merrimack students.

The Math Club, known officially as the Epsilon Delta Society, provides a means by which student interested in mathematics may expand their insight into modern principles and applications of the subject. To achieve this end it sponsors lectures by guest, faculty and student speakers. Moreover, the members go on field trips to companies that employ mathematicians. The publication of The Limit, a math-newspaper, is another of its projects to propagate interest among students. Members of the department rotate in the fulfillment of the function of moderator in order that the club may enjoy varieties of different academic viewpoints.

EPSILON DELTA SOCIETY



Come Lord, come,
Down the long corridors of our souls,
Stretch Your wounded hand,
Open new doors, newly hung.
Wash with blood and tears
Our stone hearts;
Call us with bruised lips, home . . .
Stripped of self we wander,
Shameless, not alone, into Our Father's house,
Exchanging a diadem for a laurel crown.

Religion plays an important role in the lives of Merrimack students. Father Duffy, the retreat master, holds the student's undivided attention.

RETREAT

The beginning of every school year is opened with Retreat. This year's Retreat Master was Fr. Duffy. Before beginning the various topics he planned to discuss, Father delivered an introduction to the purpose and benefits of such a program.

A lone student, kneeling in prayer during a break in the retreat sessions, finds solace in the Student Union Chapel which, always open, facilitates the needs of a busy student.

This door leads to the crypt in the Monastary of Our Lady of Good Counsel. There are several altars where the Augustinian priests offer their daily Mass and come to meditate during the day. The austerity of the crypt symbolizes the monastic tradition that has been a part of Augustinian life for centuries. An excellent tradition of education qualifies them to develop the intellect of the Merrimack student.

SANCTUARY SOCIETY

The Sanctuary Society is composed of outstanding students from the various departments in the college. These young men are privileged since they are allowed to serve near the living presence of Christ. This is an honor highly cherished by the members of this group.

THE SPIRITUAL LIFE

This year Cardinal Cushing was honored by the Augustinian Friars. They bestowed upon him an honorary membership in their order, which is the highest honor they could give. The membership was given in gratitude for the many favors the Cardinal has conferred on Merrimack.

Kneeling before the crucifix in a moment of meditation is our new college chaplain Father Edward Daley, O.S.A., who is pausing in his busy schedule to give a moment to prayer. As college chaplain he is available to aid the students with any spiritual problems they might encounter.

Mater Boni consilii, ora pro nobis . . . These words from the traditional Latin litany to Mary have special significance to the Merrimack students for their college is dedicated to Our Mother of Good Council. This theme is carried out in a mosaic donated by Mary F. Reardon and was installed in the main entrance to Tagastan Hall upon its recent completion. Students and Faculty members upon entering the Student Union Building are reminded, by this exquisite portrayal, of Our Lady's constant vigilance over the students in all their activities.

The very essence of Catholic education is to produce students who bring Christian principles into every facet of their lives. Attendance at Mass and reception of the sacraments serve as an integral part of campus life. Benediction is offered twice a week for the students.

Each Friday the students attend Mass as a body in order to receive the direct blessing of Christ the Teacher. Here Father Daley offers the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass seeking divine inspiration for his role of Chaplain and asking God's blessing upon the students.

Thoroughly instructed in the tenets of Divine Revelation and the principles of Catholic morality by the Augustinian Fathers, the students put their knowledge into practice through participation in the Mass and sacraments. The spiritual elements in our education have provided the bonds which unite and complete our intellectual and social training, thereby providing the whole life for the whole man.

CAMPUS LIFE

Within.....

Again our song; this of life,
searching the library's alleys for the light,
Reclined in luxurious melodies, drinking in Rachmaninoff,
And scattered through the coffee shop the smiling happy eye,
Swift footed girls and beaus glide at the beckon of the band:
Some-times
Stealing to His house to pray and spend a quiet time.

THE DORMITORIES

Like all young ladies everywhere, these three co-eds want to look their loveliest at the dance. Each girl on campus utilizes as much energy getting asked to the dance as any four committee members spend building the scenery. It's worth it though, isn't it, girls?

Final exams only weeks away . . . Steve and Jim industriously combine relaxation with their intellectual pursuits. Obviously, the hi-fi sounds not and silence reigns throughout the dorm. Perhaps roommate Ray is patrolling the corridors in search of frisky freshmen who might disturb our students. Good luck on your exams, gentlemen.

Here's a typical study room in one of the three-room suites of Merrimack's two new dorms. Austin Centre houses the men, while the co-eds reside at Monican Centre.

Some people find it necessary to find a quiet corner in which to study.

Careful, Phil! Don't you realize photosynthesis is taking place? This is only one of the many phases of biology that is touched upon during four years. Not only do the pre-med students make good gardeners, but their interest in all living organisms prepare them for their future status as doctors.

What was that again, Joan? The class seemed to enjoy it, whatever it was! The education seminars give the liberal arts student the opportunity to improve his knowledge of teaching methods. Acting as both students and teachers, these Aegidians can better realize the relationships that must exist in the classroom.

What's going on here? Is somebody's earphone not working properly? In the newly constructed language lab, the students learn the correct pronunciation of the idiomatic vernacular. Recorded tapes of conversational German, French and Spanish are played to the student who in turn repeats it until perfection is attained.

The drive for knowledge is sought here in the classroom, where we retreat to the inner sanctums of Aristotle, Milton and Freud. As one progresses through college, classes grow significantly smaller, and one is able to ask questions of greater depth.

CLASSROOM SHOTS

STUDENT COUNCIL

The Student Council's powers and duties consist of the following: (1) supervising elections of class officers; (2) composing the activities calendar for the scholastic year; (3) appointing delegates to the N.F.C.C.F.; (4) insuring the proper execution of school regulations; and (5) presiding over the Student Court in disciplinary matters.

The Student Council shall supervise all student activities and also act as a coordinating agency between the Student Body and the Merrimack College Administration.

There are ten members on the Council, elected by their representative classes. It is a body with prestige and power on campus, for it represents the students of Merrimack.

The Student Council, existing since the beginning of Merrimack, has grown in prowess yearly. Its members are selected from every class and are known and respected by their fellow students. It is to them we turn when arbitration is required and though they can't always solve, they do facilitate understanding.

THE LIBRARY

The Merrimack College Library is located on the lower level of the Student Union Building. Under the capable direction of Mr. F. J. Seegraber and his two assistants, Miss McNulty and Miss Powers, the library has gained significance. All students on campus agree that the library offers the necessary supplement to class-lectures and texts, as well as a refuge from the canteen and cafeteria. This is where the elite meet. . . !

Miss Patricia McNulty, a former Merrimack student, now assistant librarian, adds warmth and friendliness to an otherwise foreboding place.

Here she gives Marion Gentile a few helpful hints as she checks out Robert Redfield's The Folk Culture of Yucatan, a favorite of all Merrimack students.

Term papers require good bibliographies and the wise student first browses through the stacks. When he finds himself at an impasse, he knows he may rely on the valuable service of our library staff.

Here, our photographer captures pretty Trish Walsh as she supplements her textbooks in the library. A Chemistry major, Trish finds it necessary to use the many facilities offered by the library. Keep up the good work Trish!

Jim and Paul, our diligent marketing majors, find themselves deeply engrossed in the dictionary. When the prof said, "Define marketing," Paul said, "It's hard to explain, but I know my mummy does it every week!" Jim agreed, and they may be in the library now for years. (Care packages anyone?)

STUDENT UNION

The student lounge is utilized by the student body as a convenient place to study, to sleep, to sing and even just plain old relaxing. The atmosphere is many sided and always easy going. Comfortable furniture and good companions are the ingredients which make up this pleasant place.

When Spring arrives and warm weather makes its appearance, a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of . . . outdoor classes. Here Mr. Karam holds one of his classes outdoors, and from the relaxed positions, it is evident that the change is a welcome one.

Deep thought, headache, or sunstroke? Those balmy days of late spring are remembered as the time for outdoor classes. Most students agree that sitting on the grass in the warm sunshine is the best way yet discovered to attend class. Just around the corner are final exams, and this lazy atmosphere somehow makes the thought just a bit easier to bear.

The card selection in the book store is being perused by four of our seniors. Happily, this is not the extent of the bookstore's stock, for besides cards, there are textbooks on hand plus a fine selection of paperbound books for the convenience of the students.

AND CAMPUS LIFE

The student lounge, located in the Student Union Building, is one of the many areas on eampus offered to students for relaxation or study. It is an old adage around eampus that one must attach his star to a hard-back chair in order to study, but this underclassman seems to have solved the problem, and has made the transition from hard-back to easy chair without too much effort.

Judy Dwyer, Queen of Merrimack College's 1961 Annual Harvest Ball, smiles radiantly, and looks as beautiful as the red roses she holds in her arms.

THE HARVEST BALL

Dancing to the romantic music of the Frankie Kahn Orchestra, Bob Bott, Senior Class President, and his fiancee, the lovely Nancy Murray, take time out to smile for the photographer. Bob Walsh adroitly poses Peg Finnegan's back to the camera. Peg asks, "Why are you snickering, Bob? Is your cumberbund too tight again?"

A large, golden pumpkin framed the entrance to the Harvest Ball. Here, Charlie Fox and date pause to inspect their appearance before stepping into the lavishly decorated autumn scene to join their dancing classmates.

Surrounded by her charming court, Rosemarie Brandenberger, Anne Marie Sehlstedt, Rosemary Driscoll, and Trish Devaney, Miss Judy Dwyer is crowned Miss Merrimack of 1961 at the Harvest Ball by last year's queen, Miss Kathy Carroll.

Every year the Senior Class sponsors an annual dinner dance; this year the dance was held at the Hillview Country Club in North Reading, Mass. Music was supplied by the Frankie Kahn Orchestra, and everyone enjoyed this, the last social event held by the graduating class.

You're in the wrong line, Helen . . .

Bob Walsh whispers, "No Peg, you do it this way."

What do you mean, you don't like New England Boiled Dinners? . . .

Another one of Dick's stories?

THE DINNER DANCE

Ed Doyle seems to be whistling a tune . . . "This is a lovely way to spend an evening . . ."

Amen!

Shall We Dance?

All she said to me was, "But dar-linck, this hat is you!"

A funny thing happened to me on the way to the dance tonight . . .

Would you please play Beethoven's Ninth?

Hernando's Hideaway isn't all they say it is . . .

Among the advantages of this little gismo is its use as both pocketbook and umbrella.

Now don't forget . . . that's a promise!

Anything you can do I can do better; I can do anything better than you. No you can't! Yes I can!

I was in the movies once and I never got over it.

THE VALIANT WARRIORS . . . .

Behind these surging arms is Roger Damphousse going high into the air for a quick two points. The team effort this year left nothing to be desired, and their cooperation on the court produced both points and victories for our fabulous five.

An attempted blocked shot fails, as Roger Damphousse hits the nets for another two points against Norwich. Roger, Merrimack's high scorer, is captain of the club and the key to our success on the court.

Bob Dziadosz looks like Bob Cousy here, as he dribbles past two Lowell Tech. defenders en route to two points and a Merrimack victory.

Brendie Walsh makes a splitting skate save as Frank Pollard, Gerry Dunn and George Pollack close in. Merrimack had a bevy of formidable foes on this year's schedule and did well on the ice.

A fine rush is put on by Buzzy Miller as Merrimack's second line puts the pressure on the opposition. Assisting Miller is Art Lamphier and Pierre Pellerin. This trio has the added punch which Merrimack has so often lacked in the past. Coach Reynolds is counting on this line for the future. It is a combination of the experienced veteran Lamphier, Miller, a freshman, and the Canadian, Pellerin.

Gerry Dunn of the Warriors is seen scoring one of his three goals against the University of Connecticut. In the background are Co-Captain George Pollack and Jay Donahue. Aided by Gerry's hat-trick, the hockey team was able to defeat its rivals, 8 to 3. This season's Warrior team played the toughest schedule in its brief history.

This year's Warrior Hockey Team commanded the respect of every team that it played. We can be very proud of the performances put forth by the scrappy sextet. With a good portion of the team returning next year, we will be threatening the New England powerhouse teams once again. Many hours of hard practice have shown great dividends, and much satisfaction was attained as a result.

TENNIS . . . .

Jose Molina follows through on a vicious smash good for a score. Jose was a mainstay on the courts and one of the main reasons for Merrimack's success.

Our victorious trio hurdles the net as Coach Gosselin approves with a smile of satisfaction. The team enjoyed another successful season and were rewarded by faithful attendance at their exciting matches.

GOLF . . . .

Shown practicing his swing at the Andover Country Club is Captain Jonn McLaughlin. John, a senior from Lowell, was instrumental in leading his team to a very successful season. John has shown his talents in such state competitions as the CYO Tournament held last summer.

The Merrimack Golf Team 1960-1961. First row: Manager Bob Drummond, Father William Murray, Coach George Karam. Second row: Captain John McLaughlin, Ken Johnson, Bill Cox, Dave Callahan, Jack McKinnin, Tom Treacy, and John Treacy. The first season of intercollegiate golf proved to be most successful for the Warriors. Under the able coaching eye of Coach Karram the linksmen enjoyed a respectable three and one season. Basing our predictions on such past performances, we look to future successes.

Bud O'Connor, quarterback, captain and spirit of the Little Giants, moves the pigskin for another first down, against their arch-rival the Vets.

The Little Giants pick up six points as "Mitch" goes off tackle for the extra yardage. This fast moving action typifies football on Merrimack's campus, as all who witnessed any of the games will agree.

Some of the most exciting moments at Merrimack have taken place under this basket. Many teams and players have gone through these same motions while playing their hearts out for their respective teams. As usual, this year's league play was exemplified by the close race for top honors and the heart-warming cheers of all those who watched. Here, a fight for the rebound is about to take place as Jim Buckley watches in amazement.

This action shot typifies the kind of ball played in all the intramural basketball leagues. The intramural basketball league fulfills the two-fold aim of providing a constructive outlet for stored-up winter energies and frequently providing a source of player material for the junior varsity and varsity teams. Here, Bob Carter, a Junior classman and rugged center of the NAHAS is shown calling for an intricate off-side play pattern. The NAHAS are perennially one of the top teams and are off to an excellent start this season as a leading contender for the league title.

JUNIOR WEEK

THE HAPPY TIMES . . . .

PARENT'S DAY

A group of parents and students enjoy the stimulating conversation while waiting for the meal to be served in the cafeteria of the Student Union Building.

After Benediction in the Collegiate Chapel of Christ the Teacher, parents and students wend their way to the Student Union Building and a hot meal.

Tom Cyrs, President of the Junior Class, announces that the orchestra will play for the enjoyment of all who wish to dance.

Parents' Day is celebrated every year during Junior Week and gives the students a chance to show their parents how much their sacrifices and help are appreciated. This year Benediction in the Collegiate Chapel was followed by a catered dinner in the Student Union cafeteria. Later on in the evening everybody adjourned to the college auditorium and were treated to a performance of Shaw's Saint Joan presented by the On-Stagers.

In the presence of College officials and the Junior Honor Guard, Class President Tom Cyrs gives the welcoming address, inaugurating Dedication Day ceremonies.

One day during Junior Week is set aside by the Junior Class to dedicate its loyalty to Merrimack. Speeches are made, trees are planted, flags are raised, tears are shed, all for the honor and glory of our Alma Mater. Twenty years hence we shall all return and sit under the spreading branches of this our Cherry Tree, gift of the class of 1961, and dream of days of yore.

Tom Cyrs, President of the Junior Class; Bill Poole, Vice-President, and Father McQuade, President of Merrimack, find it hard going to hold up that immense tree.

DEDICATION DAY

The Honor Guard stands at attention while Bill Poole readies himself to be raised aloft with the Stars and Stripes.

CO-EDS DAY

Girls in sweatshirts and Merrimack hats pedalled their bicycles across campus this morning. Unusual sight—but this is Coed's Day! On this day the girls choose the King of Coed's Day and the long and short of it is—Barry Longval is crowned by Kathleen Sullivan.

Jack, no cheating! Meline, look enthused! Autograph Mac? C'mon everybody, the three-legged race is about to start!

Oh, it's a long, long, time from May to September, and the days grow short—and so bermudas! Students warm themselves in the sun and watch the games being played.

SPORTS DAY

John Connor hurls the shot in an attempt to qualify for the Olympics being held in Rome. Sports Day is an official part of Junior Week and includes the cross-country race, shotput event, softball game, tug-o-war, and the three-legged race. This day gives everyone a chance to show his athletic prowess and the aching muscles the next day almost seem worth it.

Coach Larochelle presents the trophy to Dave Wittham, Junior Class winner of the five mile marathon. This grueling race is an annual tradition of Merrimack's Junior Week . . . and to the victor—in this case, Dave—goes the spoils.

The grandest social event of the year has finally come to life. Tom Cyrs, President of the Junior Class, and Carol McDuffie, his charming fiancee, exchange pleasantries as they leave for the Prom. They are joined by the lovely, radiant Anne Fitzgibbons and her date Joe Consentino, who as Chairman of the Prom, successfully wove many tiny details into a very memorable evening.

Gerry and Bill arrive with their dates, as Dean Quinlan and Gerry Kelly escourt their ladies to the lounge.

JUNIOR PROM

The Glenn Miller Orchestra, led by Ray McKinley, was the first nationally-known band to play at a Merrimack dance. The 1960 Junior Prom will be remembered for the sometimes sweet, sometimes swinging, but always distinctive Miller sound.

Stunningly decorated surroundings, plus handsome couples, plus music and laughter, equal the Junior Prom. A gay atmosphere prevails, and the time passes much too quickly. This is indeed a night that will remain long in everyone's memory.

The arbored entrance entwined with fresh flowers and vines provided the gateway to the evening's festivities. Here, Don Porter collects tickets from a group of smiling Juniors about to dance to the music of Glen Miller's Orchestra.

Carol Foran, chosen as a member of the Queen's Court, takes time out between dances to chat with her date, Jay Collins.

Beautiful Sally Ann Freedman, Queen of the Junior Prom, accepts a bouquet of red roses from Joe Consentino as Louise Bernardin, a member of the Queen's Court, smiles happily.

What do you mean JOHN looks lovely tonight, Kenny?

Hello, mother . . . guess what . . . I'm Queen of the Junior Prom! Yes, I am a little excited, but you should see my date!

When these boys said their dates were angels, we didn't believe them . . . but really . . . a telescope?

SENIORS

Within.....

Now through these doors we've quickly passed,
Of stone and steel, of teak and brass
And enter on a number more
Of corridors, long and short.
From these we must make our choice
And in one happy voice rising,
We praise and thank all those who gave
That we more fully might learn to live.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The editors of the 1961 MERRIMACKAN are indebted to the following individuals for their generous cooperation:

- Rev. Ezra J. Fenton, O.S.A., for his traditional patience and untiring assistance.
- Mr. John Ursprung, Jr., of the William T. Cooke Publishing Company, Inc., for his expert professional guidance.
- Mr. Robert Talbott and Mrs. Wood of Loring Studios for their efficient photographic service.
- Kenneth Marisseau, Class of 1961, for his creative poetry and adaptations of Walt Whitman's Leaves of Grass.
- James Banks, Class of 1962, for his assistance during the long summer months of hard work on the embryonic MERRIMACKAN.
- The faculty, students, friends and patrons for their contributions which made this, our 1961 MERRIMACKAN, a reality.
